FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION

Pyrotech Workspace's culture is characterized by collaborative relationships and high employee engagement that relies on building partnerships and interdependence. Adhering to these principles has helped build, sustain and strengthen employee engagement in the organization.

Policy: Pyrotech Workspace respects the employees' right to organize themselves into interest groups, independent from supervision by the management. In keeping with the spirit of this policy, employees are not discriminated against for exercising this right.

Implementation: The policy is communicated to all employees through induction programme & HR policy. The custodian of this policy is the HR Head who reports directly to the MD on such issues. The employees are informed of these rights by the management.

Monitoring & Audit: Pyrotech Workspace has appropriate systems to ensure compliance with the Policy and statutory provisions, including means for filing of grievances, collective bargaining agreements and minutes of worker meetings. The HR department submits annual reports to the MD in cases of identified incidents of violation of freedom of association. HR regularly monitors compliance with the Policy and compiles these on a yearly basis and reports to the Management Committee.
